The Neville Consort Concert - St Edmund's.

Notes:

While visiting Holme Pierrepont Hall and St. Edmund's Church with the U3A, I got a call from Sue inviting us to join her and Mick at St. Edmund's Church (the Church in which Rahel and I were married) for a concert by the Neville Consort and then go back to their place for dinner. Jumped at the chance.

Proved to be a bit tricky booking the tickets through Eventbrite but got it done in the end and in truth it was a pretty good concert and very well attended.

Discovered that St. Edmund's has now been taken out of the remit of Radcliffe on Trent's vicar and amalgamated with All Hallows, a much to be preferred arrangement in my view. It does seem that there is now some effort being devoted to getting the Church used and there are regular services there. The Neville Consort apparently do sometimes sing at the Church services.

James Neville is the leader of the choir and a big cheese in the performance of this style of music.
